At the meeting on 26 February 1955 "PALM" reported the following:

In accordance with the instructions of the French [UN] Government he was appointed leader of the French delegation at the conference of the Far Eastern Committee of UNSR, which took place between the 15th and 20th of February in the small town of LAPSTONE, 34 miles from SYDNEY. At the conference there were present delegates of America, Britain, China, Australia, France, India, New Zealand and Holland, and there were represented also the military circles of MACARTHUR and MOUNTBATTEN. A Philippine delegation was not invited to the conference, although one was included in the list of participants. In PALM's opinion [2 groups unrecovered]

In particular he remarked that so far supplies and assistance with reconstruction for the liberated territories of the South-West Pacific had not got going. EVATT's speech apparently evoked manifest displeasure on the part of the American representatives, who in [3 groups unrecovered] that in his speech EVATT had set himself up as a teacher. The head of the American delegation, MUFFATT [MUFFAT] (in charge of the Far East in the State Department) proposed extending UNRRA's activities to Siam; however all the other delegations, apart from the Chinese, spoke against this proposal. The Americans are exceptionally interested in capturing Siam as a market and so have recourse [2 groups unrecovered] methods [1 group unrecovered]. The situation was precisely the same over the American proposal [5 groups unrecovered] Australia [1 group unrecovered] and [2 groups unrecovered] at [3 groups unrecovered].

[Part II] At the conference EVATT apparently tried to pay "P" a great deal of attention and had more than one conversation with him. In a chat EVATT explained that Australia [2 groups unrecovered] had taken up a correct position towards DE GAULLE. He asked that DE GAULLE should make a declaration of friendship towards Australia, which, he thought, would make a big impression on the Australian people. Further EVATT indicated that France should now be closer than ever before to the countries of the British Empire, and indicated that

Speaking of the situation in America he said that the political and economic position of China had appreciably improved [since?] November 1944, [3 groups unrecovered] Chinese Government. The head of the British delegation, BUTLER (former Consul-General of Britain in SAN FRANCISCO) talked to P. on the Polish question. He considers that Russia's authority has risen to a colossal extent and has to be reckoned with. We were faced in the Polish question with a choice between principle and victory; we had chosen the latter, the more so as the Polish Government in LONDON is regarded

, which has no support from the Polish people. The Dutch representative, KERSTEN [S] developed the idea that after the war Russia will dictate to small countries and interfere in their affairs. In P.'s opinion, by his refusal to meet ROOSEVELT, DE GAULLE wanted to demonstrate thoroughly his [OK position] with the French Government. [5 groups unrecovered]. DE GAULLE's [OK resolution] is being criticised not only by America and Britain, but also
